Reporting Your Damage

Immediately contact your Insurance company to report your claim, try to have your policy number available. . These claims numbers are up 24 hours a day, 7 days a week & if you are unsure of the claims number, your best bet is to contact your local agent. It is imperative to report your claim as quickly as possible.

The insurance carrier will need details of the damage to your home i.e. fire, water, what is & in which room is damaged etc. Prepare a list of personal property that was destroyed in the event. Your claim representative should provide forms that describe the information needed to determine your loss.

Mitigation

Most policies require you to mitigate your loss. After notifying your insurance carrier contact a mitigation specialist there are many steps you can take to minimize the impact of a loss at home. In case of fire and smoke damage promptly report your loss. Do not try to clean the damaged items, as sometimes cleaning things without the proper equipment can do more harm than good. Your insurance company will direct you to contact an emergency mitigation vendor s to help you with this. If your home has suffered water damage, make sure that the water has been shut off. Move all your possessions out of the affected areas and then make sure that as much water is removed as possible. In the case of either fire or water damage, protect the safety of your family and pets by keeping them out of the damaged areas. If your home is uninhabitable and you must stay elsewhere, keep the receipts for all your expenses. Your insurance company will help direct you to an appropriate place to stay. In any type of loss timing is critical. Contact your insurance companies immediately and then contact an emergency mitigation vendor
